To whom it may concern,

Pumpsil products
Animal Derived Component Statement

Animal derived materials are not intentionally used in the raw materials or extrusion process for Pumpsil tubing products.

Although Pumpsil is not routinely tested for their presence, based on the information made available to us by the raw material manufacturer, these substances are not expected to be present. However, the fact that these substances are not intentionally used in this product does not exclude that trace levels of these substances may be present.

Yours faithfully
